What this policy covers

- promote a positive and professional image;
- respect the needs of men and women from all cultures and religions;
- make any adjustments that may be needed because of disability;
- take account of health and safety requirements; and
- help staff and managers decide what clothing it is appropriate to wear to work.

The directions and requirements within this policy are not exhaustive and you will be expected to comply with further management instructions concerning dress, appearance and cleanliness.

Personal Protective Equipment/Clothing

Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 Personal Protective Equipment at Work Regulations 1992 states that that the Employer has to provide personal protective equipment when required in the workplace, and in addition, to provide the requisite training in the use of such equipment.

The employee has a duty to use equipment appropriately. This equipment may include uniforms, masks, protective gloves, goggles, ear protection, visors, or protective footwear.

Following a risk assessment Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) should be issued with the aim of reducing significant risk as far as reasonably practicable. Employees should alert their manager if they have concerns in connection with personal protective equipment, for example, if it becomes damaged or lost.

Where required, Interr will provide each employee with a Personal Protective Equipment/Clothing. Staff in roles that require protective clothing are required to wear this whilst carrying out their duties in accordance with health and safety requirements. If individuals are unsure about such requirements, they should discuss this with their manager.

This policy may be amended by Interr at any time in order to take into account changes in legislation and best practice. This policy was last reviewed and agreed by the Board and seeks to be reviewed and updated annually. Any queries arising regarding this policy should be addressed to Mick Tabori.
